ADVISA LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

9 SESSIONS

Nine-month blended learning journey uniquely designed for established leaders

Leaders need opportunities to reflect, share and sharpen their skills as well as to develop new ones.

In the ADVISA Leadership Academy, participants form meaningful relationships with the members of their cohort as well as with the Academy's moderator and facilitators. This is because we all have something to teach and we have something to learn.

Through an intentional combination of individual learning and application, group practice and discussion sessions, 1:1 coaching, an individual development project, and manager involvement, participants in the ADVISA Leadership Academy will experience a shift. They will come away with a surer sense of themselves as leaders, as well as a practical set of sharpened skills for leading others in work and in life.

Leading people requires very real skills that take development and practice. This journey is intended to develop, refine and expand on the skills it takes for leaders to lead their best.

The nine-month blended learning journey includes personalized coaching, a Leadership Development Project and experiential development with:

- Individual, self-directed sessions for participants to learn at their own pace
- Live group sessions for discussion, practice and application
- Data-based development work driven by The Predictive Index and EQ-I 2.0
- 1-on-1 coaching
- Partnership with a supervisor or mentor

Who it's for:

The ADVISA Leadership Academy is a fit for people at the management level and above. Participants should be in positions in which they are leading others. As you consider candidates for this program, think about:

- Someone who has moved into a management role and shows the desire for further leadership development and eventually growth
- Someone who is making the transition to working in a new context, industry, culture, etc. (e.g. from the military to consulting, or from operations to sales)
- Someone who has been tasked with playing a significant role in key strategic initiatives, like leading change initiatives or shifting culture
